

Copyright and other conditions for the Trilogik website

This website (www.trilogik.se) is the property of Trilogik Konsult AB. All the material on this website has been developed by Trilogik and is Trilogik's property, unless expressly stated otherwise.

The copying of this material is permitted for both personal and internal use within an organization provided that its contents is expressed correctly, the source is named and Trilogik's right of ownership to this material is evident.

The use of this material for commercial purposes is not allowed without written permission from Trilogik. The material may not be used on other websites (it is, however, permitted to link to this website or to separate web pages within the site).

Please note that special copyright conditions may hold for photographs on this site, further restricting the rights of using the material.

The material on this website is presented as a service and a source of information for Trilogik's clients and others who are interested. Our endeavour is for all the information on this website to be correct and usable, but Trilogik disclaims all legal responsibility for any negative consequences as a result of using this material, regardless of whether these negative consequences are due to faults or shortcomings in the material itself or its being wrongly used.

Links to other websites from Trilogik's website are given as a service and shall not be generally regarded as our recommendations. Trilogik can not take any legal responsibility for the contents of these websites as it can change continuously outside our control.

Our aim is, of course, to link only to material that we judge to be serious and usable.

